COMPARING ANIMALS USING EBVs

EBVs are a tool that will help you to make more educated decisions when you are choosing breeding stock. The best way to make use of this information is to first decide YOUR breeding goals and secondly to select animals with EBVs that match those criteria.

Birth Weight EBV (kg) is based on the measured birth weight of progeny, adjusted for dam age. The lower the value the lighter the calf at birth and the lower the likelihood of a difficult birth. This is particularly important when selecting sires for use over heifers.

200-Day Milk EBV (kg) is an estimate of an animal's milking ability. For sires, this EBV indicates the effect of the daughter's milking ability, inherited from the sire, on the 200-day weight of her calves. For dams, it indicates her own milking ability.

200 Day Growth EBV (kg) is calculated from the weight of progeny taken between 80 and 300 days of age. Values are adjusted to 200 days and for age of dam. This EBV is the best single estimate of an animal's genetic merit for growth to early ages.

400-Day Weight EBV (kg) is calculated from the weight of progeny taken between 301 and 500 days of age, adjusted to 400 days and for age of dam. This EBV is the best single estimate of an animal's genetic merit for yearling weight.

600-Day Weight EBV (kg) is calculated from the weight of progeny taken between 501 and 900 days of age, adjusted to 600 days and for age of dam. This EBV is the best single estimate of an animal's genetic merit for growth beyond yearling age.

Mature Cow Weight EBV (kg) is based on the cow weight when the calf is weighed for weaning. This EBV is an estimate of the genetic difference in cow weight at 5 years of age and is an indicator of growth at later ages and potential feed maintenance requirements of the females in the breeding herd. Smaller, or more moderate EBVs are generally more favourable.

The Mature Cow Weight EBV may also be used by steer breeders wishing to grow animals out to a larger weight.

Scrotal Size EBV (cm) is calculated from the circumference of the scrotum, measured in centimetres and adjusted to 400 days of age. This EBV is an estimate of a sire's genetic merit for scrotal size and is positively correlated to age of puberty in female progeny.

Carcass Weight EBV (kg) is based on abattoir carcass records and is an indicator of the genetic differences in carcass weight at the standard age of 650 days.

Eye Muscle Area EBV (sq cm) is calculated from measurements from live animal scans and from abattoir carcass data. This EBV estimates genetic differences in eye muscle area at the 12/13th rib site of a 300 kg dressed carcass. More positive EBVs indicate better muscling on animals. Sires with relatively higher EMA EBVs are expected to produce better muscled and higher percentage yielding progeny at the same carcass weight than will sires with lower EMA EBVs.

Rib Fat and Rump Fat EBVs (mm) are calculated from measurements of subcutaneous fat depth at the 12/13 rib site and the P8 rump site (from live animal scans and from abattoir carcasses) and are adjusted to a standard 300 kg carcass. These EBVs are indicators of the genetic differences in fat depth on a standard 300 kg carcass. Sires with low, or negative, fat EBVs are expected to produce leaner progeny at any particular carcass weight than will sires with higher EBVs.

OLSSON'S BEEFMIX & PROTEIN PLUS are concentrated loose-mix supplements which are available in 20kg bags. When designing supplements for ruminants, the primary objective is feeding the microorganisms in the rumen. The bacteria in the rumen require an array of minerals and elements to process feed. Nitrogen, phosphorus and sulphur are some of the major elements required for the synthesis of amino acids and protein.

There is a concentration of these elements at which rumen microbes function optimally, so each of these elements must be in balance. When this ratio is correct, the protein derived from the bacteria in the rumen results in more digestion of the food eaten by the animal and more protein for the animal to digest.

Grain rations are deficient in some minerals and vitamins. Feeding excess grain can result in unhealthy animals due to acid build-up in the rumen. The use of a correctly balanced premix, such as BEEFMIX or PROTEIN PLUS can overcome these problems.
